

NANCY WYNNE PREDICTS QUIET WEEK IN SOCIETY CIRCLES

Various Small Affairs Will Characterize the Season. Many Persons Are Leaving for Southern Resorts—Matters of Interest

With Monday the least exciting week of the season in the social world will open. Of course, great interest centers round the annual Club Night of the Plays and Players, however, which this year will be held in the ballroom of the Bellevue-Stratford hotel in the clubrooms. This will enable the members to ask any number of friends, and we are all looking forward to it with the greatest pleasure and expectancy. The play to be given is "Dolly Reforming Herself," a four-act comedy by Henry Arthur James. The cast will include Mrs. J. Howard Fisher, Mrs. Philip A. Castner and Mrs. Samuel Woodward, Vinton Freedley, Herbert Welch, Joseph A. Deering, Jr., William Hughes Mearns, Henry B. Schaffer, Jr., and Drexel Steel. Miss Maude Burt McCall and Dr. Daniel Hoyt will be stage directors.

Another interesting event in the week will be the dance which Mr. and Mrs. Frank Granger Kennedy will give for their nieces, Emily Posey Kennedy and Helen Hansell, who are debutantes of the season, on Friday night at the Bellevue-Stratford. Lucia Warden will be given a theatre party by her mother, Mrs. Herbert W. Warden, before this affair, and there will be several dinners.

I heard yesterday of a very exciting engagement which is due to come out soon, though the party of the first part and the party of the second part are strenuously denying the fact. Only the other day I saw them at the Ritz at luncheon, and the little fair-haired SHE was saying, "Why, of course it's all perfectly absurd and not a word of it true," when some one who stopped to speak to them, evidently became personal in her remarks. He said nothing, but smiled serenely, and did not appear embarrassed at all, or as if he would like to run away.

It remains for one of the most progressive department stores in town to disprove the theory held by certain hypercritical ones that a college education equips a man solely for the social duties of life, paying little or no heed to the qualifications requisite in business. This particular store has offered certain inducements to the younger men who have finished their course at college, and, in fact, has placed a number of them in responsible positions at the heads of the various departments. Of course, social connections are not to be scorned, but it requires infinitely more than the popularity which the membership to the smartest fraternities and clubs confers, to face the difficult problems which confront a man in business. It's rather nice to know, then, that any number of our younger men who may hitherto have been hiding their lights under a capacious bushel have secured the proper channels to try their mettle in the grim business world. Hutchy Scott, Alfred Sergeant, Edmund Rogers and Wallace Johnson are only a few of the many young men of social prominence who are hard at work trying to reach the pinnacle of success via the mercantile route.

VAUDEVILLE "VANITY FAIR" FULL OF SPRIGHTLY MUSIC

Melange Given at Overbrook Golf Club Last Night Full of Attractive Singing and Dancing Choruses. Performance to Be Repeated Tonight

The vaudeville entertainment, entitled "Vanity Fair," which was given last night at the Overbrook Golf Club, more than fulfilled the expectations of those who saw the performance, and as the program will be repeated tonight it is expected that the ballroom will be crowded to the doors. A one-act comedy, entitled "Which is Which" was presented very creditably by Mrs. Philip Castner, Miss Katharine Stevens, Miss Jean Beasley, Mr. Eugene Heine and Mr. Matthew Kennedy. Apart from the interesting features of the show and the grace and charm of the dancers, the costumes worn made quite an impression on the audience; the dressing was up to the hour. The costumes for the chorus, "Araby," upon which spotlights were thrown as the chorus members danced down the plank, extending from the stage to the auditorium, were gorgeous in their brilliant colors and rich trimmings, while the skating chorus, attired in white satin suits and dresses, trimmed with white fur, and topped with fur caps, presented an ideal picture of winter sports. And in the bandbox chorus the little French maids in blue satin with dainty aprons and the men in regulation bellboy suits made quite a hit. The "Vanity Fair" Club, during whose reproduction Mr. Herbert Bear sang "The Girl I Love on the Magazine Cover" created quite a sensation. The chorus were shown in a large frame representing a magazine cover, and the costumes were lovely. Mrs. Philip A. Castner, in a wonderful cerise velvet cloak trimmed with fur, and with Mrs. C. Howard Anthony, in a beautiful "cover" beautiful enough for any artist's pencil; Miss Adele M. Mosier and Mr. Allison Hayes, as "Columbine and Harlequin," in pink and white, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Dudley, in black and white, were in many-colored Harlequin costume, presented a startlingly lifelike replica of the original "Vanity Fair" cover; Miss Eleanor Carr, as a black and white poster, dressed in black velvet and white satin, made a stunning "cover"; Miss Frances McCann, in a gorgeous red and white satin costume, also received much applause. The costumes shown in the "You Have Got the Style" chorus were stunningly bright cerise dresses trimmed with black for the girls, and for the men black satin, English knickerbockers. Others were in Hungarian and Dutch attire.

The choruses included Miss Virginia Wetherill, Miss Ruth Powell, Miss Lucy Shaw, Miss Sidney Wilson, Miss Fredrica G. Bremer, Mr. Everett Mosier, Mr. Ray Farrington, Mr. Robert John, Mr. W. Allison Hayes, Mr. Reynolds Pierpont, Miss Jessie Sparks, Miss Esther Bieler, Miss Ada McDaniels, Miss Helen Glase, Mr. Archie Sparks, Mr. William Clausen, Mr. James Millholland, Miss Dorothy Dexter, Miss Eleanor Eveland, Miss Adele Mosier, Mr. Joseph Baldi, Mr. Bartlett Stryker, Mr. Frank Watkin, Mr. James Millholland, Mr. Louis De Lone, Miss Elizabeth Gibb, Miss Frances Leisen, Mr. Charlie Walnut, Mr. Joseph Lamorelle, Mr. West Jordan and Mr. William Harry, Jr.
